NEW JUDGE — Murray Draper (right) Tuesday was sworn in by Judge Maurice Dooling of the Dist. Court of Appeals in San Francisco as a San Mateo County superior court judge. Judge Draper, who was appointed by Gov. Earl Warren, becomes the county's third superior court judge. He is now looking for a "home" to try the cases to come before him.

Swear In Draper As Judge

Murray Draper was sworn in Tuesday in an impressive ceremony as San Mateo County's third superior judge, and county officials immediately began scurrying around to find him a place to work.

The fire was built under the county officials by Superior Judge Edmund Scott, who during his congratulatory speech rapped the officials for failing to provide Judge Draper a place to operate.

"Somebody has failed," Judge Scott commented, comparing Judge Draper to the old circuit-riding judges, except that Judge Draper would be "circling about the courthouse."

Judge Draper started in with the court calendar Wednesday with the first case an action on a lien, with a jury trial. The trial took place in the supervisors' room where the new judge is to hold court on days when it is not being used by the supervisors.

The latter, meanwhile, were prepared to give up their caucus room to the judge for use as his office. Proposal call for moving the books from the law library annex next to the justice court, with the supervisors using this room for caucus meetings.

A courtroom packed with attorneys, county and city officials and friends of Judge Draper heard the oath administered to him by Justice Maurice Dooling of the district court of appeals, San Francisco, and former San Benito County superior judge.

Judge Dooling, before whom Draper tried some of his first cases, congratulated Draper and praised his selection by Governor Earl Warren.

"The office of superior judge is the most important office in the State of California," Judge Dooling declared. "The higher courts are not as important in the day to day conduct of the law as the judges of the superior court."

"In superior court justice is done by and large. The number of reversals is small compared to the number of judgments." "You are making some sacrifices, and you cannot hope to become a rich man — at least not legitimately — and I know there's no danger of your becoming rich," Judge Dooling continued.

Belmont Sets Up Penalties For Unauthorized Excavating

Belmont's Halloween whodunit, concerning placement of an unauthorized water pipe in Ponce Ave. came to a partial solution this week, and the council paved the way for an ordinance penalizing any future pipe-laying without authorization.

Councilman Lyle Jones, after hearing three conflicting stories concerning the Ponce Ave. project, said he would introduce a measure providing a maximum fine of $500 for illegal excavation of city streets.

Jones said that if such legislation were drawn up by City Atty. Paul A. McCarthy, he would be glad to introduce it at a future meeting.

The council heard first from Ed Lehmer, who said he had had an oral contract with Robert L. Rousseau to dig ditches for the pipe.

Lehmer informed councilmen he was told that Rousseau had permission for the line from the city. He admitted, however, that he "should have checked with the city" before beginning excavations.

Mrs. Kathleen M. Rousseau and her son later appeared at the meeting to give their side of the controversial incident.

Robert Rousseau told councilmen that he had made a contract with Lehmer for excavation. He added that he had received permission from the Belmont Water Board Dir. W. P. Davis.

Davis replied that in most cases he warned applicants for private lines that they first should clear with the city clerk's office.

Davis said he thought he had issued such a warning to Rousseau. "I didn't know that line was in until it was an accomplished fact," he concluded.

Rousseau denied that Davis had told him he first must obtain city permission.

City Engineer Larry G. Brian said the pipeline was definitely "on the city right-of-way." He estimated the length at about "five or six hundred feet."

The city engineer said that one person now must take responsibility for the pipe line, paying for any break which might occur in the future. Rousseau said he would accept the responsibility.

Brian then said that "probably" there would be a permanent line installed next Spring, when the temporary line would be removed.

Henry Schaldach, attorney for Robert L. Russell, 44, a San Carlos carpenter accused of assault with a deadly weapon, today indicated he would attempt to prove double jeopardy when the case comes to trial in superior court.

Schaldach's defense plans were written into the record in Judge R. C. Johnson's court today when Russell was arraigned.

The San Carlos attorney bases his defense on an original charge which was dismissed in superior court after the district attorney's office failed to appear.

Burglary Attempt At SC Sport Shop

San Carlos police have reported a third burglary attempt within 18 months at Armando Sport Shop, 648 El Camino Real, sometime early Tuesday.

The town, Armando Etiopi, 1805 Hopkins Ave., Redwood City, said today that nothing was taken and the burglars were taken in an attempt to gain entrance.

Police reported that the prowlers must have made their abortive try sometime between 12:30 and 1:15 a.m. A police check 30 minutes past midnight showed everything in order, but 45 minutes later the attempt was discovered.

The would-be raiders smashed a rear window and attempted to pry off the rear door, police declared.

Only last Sept. 19 the sport shop was raided and 22 guns of various descriptions taken, Etiopi said. None has yet been recovered.

The first raid resulted in the capture of three 15-year-olds March 5, 1948. The teen-agers trio cached their loot under the woodshop building at Sequoia High School.

Double Jeopardy
Plea in SC Case

Henry Schaldach, attorney for Robert L. Russell, 44, a San Carlos carpenter accused of assault with a deadly weapon, today indicated he would attempt to prove double jeopardy when the case comes to trial in superior court.

Schaldach's defense plans were written into the record in Judge R. C. Johnson's court today when Russell was arraigned.

The San Carlos attorney bases his defense on an original charge which was dismissed in superior court after the district attorney's office failed to appear.

The defendant appeared in court Oct. 4, though Vernon V. Vail of the district attorney's office said today that his office had expected to prosecute Oct. 14.

Russell was charged anew with hitting his neighbor Edwin T. Moore, 2001 Greenwood Dr., over the head with a hammer last July 1. The new complaint was filed Oct. 10.

Ill Health Blamed For Suicide

Despondency over ill health was given by San Carlos police as the motive which Sunday afternoon caused Mrs. Elizabeth Caracudas, 46, a well-known San Carlos housewife, to end her life by shooting.

Mrs. Caracudas, suffering from a nervous condition for some time, was found in a lean-to at the rear of her husband's property on El Camino Real near the northern city limits.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at Community Hospital at 4:35 p.m. yesterday after placing a .38 caliber revolver in her mouth and firing twice, police reported.

She was the wife of James D. Caracudas, owner of the Arcade Bldg., who was working in the rear of the structure when the tragedy occurred.

Officers said that Caracudas had been doing alteration work on the building while his wife sat sunning herself nearby.

Sometime later, however, Caracudas noted that his wife was absent and made a search of the property. After failing to find her, he drove over to the Belmont Stadium, where Mrs. Caracudas' close friend, Mrs. W. T. Grant, resided.

It was Mrs. Grant who discovered the body some 200 feet from the rear of the Arcade in a small lean-to.

Caracudas told police the suicide had evidently been planned earlier in the day. His wife must have taken the revolver from the couple's bedroom when she left the building, the grief-stricken husband told officers.

Mrs. Caracudas had been a San Carlos resident for the past six years. She was a native of Germany, where she is survived by her father, Adolph Gulk, and a brother, Heinrich Gulk.

Funeral services were held at the White Oaks Chapel Wednesday. Interment in the Greek Orthodox Memorial Park, Colma, followed.

Sydney Dunton Gives Halloween Party in SC

Sydney Dunton ushered in the Halloween festivities with a gay party at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dunton, at 208 Baytree Rd., San Carlos, Saturday night. He not only had all the usual Halloween games and decorations, but he provided his own hand-made Spook Hollow, built in the backyard. Guests were escorted through the tunnel by a ghost.

They walked the plank, ran into blasts of cold air and odd, damp objects which rivaled the spook hollows staged at the various FTA parties.

Inside the house, the children found the atmosphere carried out with black cats and candles while a four-faced pumpkin decorated the supper table.

Howard Ressler, a guest at the affair, played and sang and led some impromptu community singing during the evening. Western garb and Spanish costumes were in the majority.

Supervisors Get Plans For TB Home

The final working drawings for the new $1,650,000 San Mateo County Tuberculosis Hospital were presented Tuesday to the board of supervisors for approval.

The supervisors, before giving the final nod to the project, referred the plans to the building inspector, the planning commission and the health department.

Tuesday's development on the project takes it out of the planning state and into the construction zone.

Architect Douglas Dacre Stone, who submitted the plans, said that work on the new hospital is due to start on Jan. 15. He estimated it would take about 18 months to complete the hospital.

The 100-bed facility is to be built on the site of the present Canyon Sanatorium, off Whipple Ave., west of Redwood City.

The supervisors gave their approval today to the plans, subject to the favorable reports from the buildings, planning and health officials.

Stone said that bids will be called after the first of the year, and construction of the facility will be pushed.

The project is to be financed from a $1,500,000 bond issue passed by the voters, plus $125,000 available in state funds.

The selection of the site for the new facility was a subject of controversy, with the greatest pressure to have the facility built near Community Hospital in South San Mateo.

After reversing themselves several times on the choice of the site, the supervisors put the matter up to the electorate, which voted for the present location.

Pending completion of the new hospital building, the tuberculosis patients are to be moved into a recently-completed wing of the Crystal Springs Relief Home, in which a new kitchen is being built.

SC-Belmont Sorooptimists Hear Reports

Reports on the second regional conference of the Southwestern region, American Federation of Sorooptimists Clubs, were given at the last business luncheon meeting of the Belmont-San Carlos Sorooptimists at the Gables, Belmont. President Louise Pennington gave the report of the conference held in Berkeley Oct. 21, 22 and 23.

The meetings included an informal reception at the Hotel Shattuck, a Saturday business session at the Little Theater at the Berkeley High School, with Regional Director Emily N. Ziegler presiding, and a formal banquet at the Hotel Claremont.

At the Saturday meeting, President Pennington reported, greetings were extended delegates by the Hon. Lawrence L. Cross, mayor of Berkeley, and the response by Dr. Ruth Thomas, past regional director.

Regional Responsibility was the theme of the conference, and the major matters discussed were regional organization and the Sorooptimist House.

An address, "Women's Responsibility in the Reconstruction of Europe," given by Florence Porter, executive secretary of the California School Trustees Assn., and a member of the Bakersfield Club, climaxed the conference at the evening banquet.

Propose New SMJC Campus To Replace 3 Scattered Ones

An entirely new San Mateo Junior College campus to replace its present three scattered locations was suggested officially this week as a solution to one of the county's pressing problems—congested educational facilities.

The nucleus of the plan was suggested by San Mateo Councilman Edward J. Reilly. It came at a meeting which had started out as simply a conference to reach an agreement on widening N. Humboldt St. between Poplar and Peninsula Aves.

Before the meeting adjourned, it was agreed that another meeting should be called within two or three weeks to further pursue the idea.

This week's conference was attended by members of the junior college board of trustees, School District Board, San Mateo City Council, City Manager B. Sullivan, Charles Morris, junior college president and W. T. Van Voris, high school district superintendent.

Those present expressed the hope that school and city officials from other parts of the county would be able to attend the next meeting.

"This is a problem which concerns the entire county and we should all get started on doing something about it," U. S. Simonds Jr., junior college trustee, pointed out.

According to president Morris, the junior college will have an enrollment of nearly 6000 within the "foreseeable future."

This many students, he said, will require a campus with a bare minimum of 70 to 75 acres.

The present Delaware campus could be expanded to approximately 70 acres if the junior college acquired the San Mateo High School property which adjoins it. This it was pointed out by Van Voris, would hardly be feasible since there is no other land available in that part of the city on which to build a new High School.

Van Voris also pointed out that the high school district is already faced with the problem of providing at least two new schools in other sections to accommodate the rapidly growing population.

Councilman Reilly's suggestion took the approach that a large parcel of land—possibly 150 acres—be purchased by the junior college in a new location. He suggested the possibility of locating the campus on the southwest edge of San Mateo.

The advantages of greater accessibility from either end of the county and fewer traffic problems were pointed out in favor of such a location.

A municipal stadium and auditorium were suggested as possibilities in using the present Delaware property of the junior college.

Jorgen C. Johansen, president of the junior college trustees, said that the board would welcome formation of a county-wide committee to study the problem.

The junior college district includes some three fifths of the assessed valuation of the county. South San Francisco, Redwood City and Pescadero are the only communities not included.

Council Calls for Sewer Bids After Protests in Belmont

Belmont City councilmen this week overruled the one protest submitted against a Clee St. sewer assessment district and ordered the city clerk to call for bids on the $1331 job.

Lone protestant to the sewer line was Chris Jordan, owner of extensive Belmont property, and a former mayor.

Jordan appeared at the meeting with a claim that property he owns on Clee St. is already served by a sewer line.

Councilmen said that his property in Belmont Village, consisting of three lots, had never been assessed for the sewer outfall, unless a search of records proves Jordan's contention that lot 1 was so assessed.

The sewer line was proposed by Frank Westley who is building on lots 4 and 5. Hudson owns lot 6 and lives on lot 7, he told the council.

Should Brian's research substantiate the claims given Hudson when he purchased the two lots, the council indicated, no assessment will be made against lot 6.

Bids on the project will be opened at the council's next regular meeting Nov. 28.

City Atty. Paul A. McCarthy informed the council that recent legislation allows the council to overrule even a 90 per cent protest in matters affecting public sanitation as in the Clee St. sewer line.

Police Tactics
Class in Belmont

Belmont's city hall will be headquarters for a new course in police tactics beginning Nov 15, Chief O. Walter Lindholm announced today.

The school will be sponsored by the Peace Officers' Training Service, whose main Bay Area office is in Oakland. The Belmont classes will serve officers throughout the Peninsula, Chief Lindholm said.

Officers on present forces will be given brush-up courses without charges, Lindholm said. Others, including prospective candidates for civil service examinations will be charged for the classes.

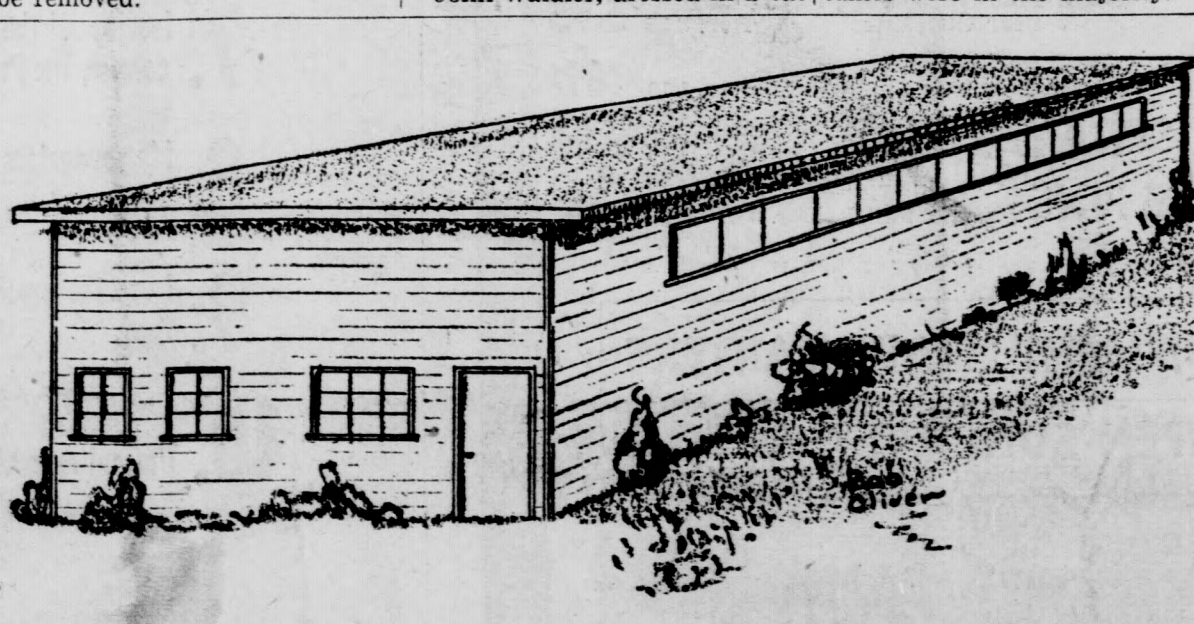

Included in the course will be talks by police specialists from metropolitan departments. They will explain procedure and aid in providing specific cases to emphasize lessons.

Classes will be held each third Tuesday of the month, Chief Lindholm stated. Should the course prove popular, more frequent meetings will be held.

C. M. Ritchie Named To Belmont Post

Mayor Bayley Kohlmeier this week appointed C. M. Ritchie, 1516 Sunnyslope Ave., to the Belmont Planning Commission to succeed Maurice Litou, resigned.

The council in approving the selection went on record praising Litou for his many years of "faithful and valuable service" on the commission.

RECREATION FACILITY — The new Cipriani Playground building, a project undertaken by the neighborhood on a volunteer basis, is shown above as sketched by Artist Bob Oliver. The building, to be erected by Contractor Don Howard, will be about 30x60 feet. Entirely the work of interested parents in the western section of Belmont, the new structure last night was approved by the Belmont council, subject to an ok by Chief Elbert E. Miller of the Belmont Fire Dist. Already some $300 has been donated, according to Howard. Though not a city project, the council congratulated those seeking public funds, and urged recreation-minded citizens to aid the project.

Belmont PTA Hears Talk by School Nurse On Importance of Well-Balanced Diet

"Surveys prove that 70 per cent of the people do not realize how important food is for their bodies," reported Mrs. Rachel Phillips, Belmont School nurse, when she spoke to the Belmont Parent Teacher Assn. at its regular meeting last week at the Walter-mire School.

Mrs. Phillips presented a Walt Disney cartoon, "Something You Didn't Eat," which stresses the importance of eating well-balanced meals. She told the group of her activities of conducting vision tests, hearing tests, physical inspections and the importance of the health record cards, which the children bring home. She described the San Mateo County facilities special schools for sight saving, lip reading, cerebral palsied and exceptional children.

The PTA membership drive prize was won by Mrs. Edna Lyons' first grade. Mrs. Annette Girard's first grade was second, while at Louis Barrett School, Mrs. Anderson's kindergarten class came in third. The winners may have parties or buy something special for their rooms. Three hundred and thirty-eight members now give Belmont the largest membership in its history.

Recommendations from the executive board were read by Mrs. Kenneth Taylor, secretary, and accepted. They were to sponsor and aid the interscholastic tennis matches being conducted by Ray Withers and Paul Miller and to purchase records for the folk dancing classes. The main project for the year will be the purchase of a still film machine for both schools. If funds allow, instruments for a drum and bugle corps also will be purchased.

On the recommendation of the ways and means committee, with Mrs. Wendell Seward, chairman, the first money raising undertaking of the unit will be a baked goods, white elephants and rummage sale on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 18 and 19.

The first grade mothers committee decorated the room in the Halloween motif. Mrs. Corbett, chairman, Mrs. Fred Hunt and Mrs. Jack Reeves served refreshments. Mrs. Michael Miles and her co-chairman of hospitality, Mrs. William Larsen, assisted. Mrs. Genevieve Roarty's and Mrs. Mae Dempsey's first grades presented a health play entitled "Old Mother Hubbard's Cupboard." Taking part in the play were Susan Honig, Joanne Brown, Cathy Avery, Tommy Laasko, Cathy White, Susan Hunt, Laurence, Moore, Gary Stueck, Bruce Scott, Nancy Arni, Dickie Page, Dickie May, Richard Pecar and Susan Anderson. Mrs. Verna DeWitt's class won the room count for the first meeting.

SC Police Bag Woman 2nd Time

Miss Ann E. Redmond, 38-year-old Redwood City clerk, was free on $50 bail today after she had been arrested on a drunk charge early Saturday afternoon—only four hours after her release on $250 bail on drunk driving charges.

Miss Redmond, who lives at 34 Grand St., was arrested shortly before 1 p.m. Saturday when she complained to police that "someone has stolen my car."

Police investigation found that in reality the automobile had never been reclaimed after it was impounded at Sharkey's Service Station.

Friday evening Miss Redmond had been locked up on a drunk driving charge after ripping out 99 feet of picket fence in front of the Bruce Bauer Lumber Co.

Mrs. Dematteis spoke on wills and trust funds and answered many questions following his talk.

Belmont Passes 'No Parking' Rules

Belmont's city council this week passed several "no parking" provisions as a result of complaints from residents near the new Belmont Theater.

Councilman Lyle Jones, who serves as police commissioner, introduced the resolutions, which he said were without objection from theater operators.

The chief resolution for prohibition of parking on the north side of North Rd. west of El Camino Real. The "no parking" area extends west until the street turns south.

Included in the resolution was a "no parking" order on Ruth Ave. for a distance of 112 feet west of El Camino Real and a similar provision for Civic Ln. between O'Neill Ave. and Broadway.

The council ordered Chief O. Walter Lindholm of the City Police Dept. to supervise proper installation of signs setting up the new parking law.

Lindholm said that the department would issue warning tags for the first 10 days after the new provisions became effective.

Admires Moon, Falls Down Cliff

A 19-year-old woman plunged down a steep slope for a distance of 100 feet from the shoulder of Coast Hwy. near Sharp Park Sunday night and escaped with slight injury.

Mrs. Betty Luerto of Alameda, who received treatment at Junipero Serra Hospital for friction burns, told highway patrolmen she had left a companion in an automobile and was viewing the moon over the water when she lost her balance.

"I was sitting on the edge of the embankment, marveling at the view," she recounted, "when in grabbing for my cigarette lighter which had slipped from my hand, I over-balanced."

The young woman went tumbling head over heels down the rocky slope, landing near the water's edge. She managed to make her way up the bank to the road.

Fire Hydrant Plan Goes to Trustees

Chief Joseph L. Lodi of the Redwood City Fire Dept. is expected to appear at tonight's adjourned meeting of the Sequoia High School Dist. trustees to outline fire hydrant requirements on the high school.

Chief Lodi is expected to make recommendations for installation of sufficient hydrants to provide access to all buildings.

Florida Man Held On Check Charge

The Federal Bureau of Investigation today placed a hold on Arthur A. Kaufherr, 40-year-old Florida man charged by San Carlos police with writing a check without sufficient funds.

San Carlos police said that the FBI has asked for a similar hold on Kaufherr's companion, Glensel E. Siler, 32, now serving a 10-day sentence in the county jail on a vagrancy charge.

The sheriff's office of Palm Beach County, Fla., sent a telegram to San Carlos police this week advising them that four warrants against Kaufherr are being forwarded by mail. The warrants will charge Kaufherr with check writing activities in Palm Beach, officers said.

Built of reinforced concrete with steel frames, the buildings will be one story tall and of contemporary design, Cohn explained.

Weak Line Stops Football Team

Ambitious football players were involved in a freak "fire" in San Carlos Saturday.

Chief Lyle Clark reported that a sandlot game was halted abruptly at 8:53 a.m. Saturday when a kicked pigskin struck power lines at 121 Plymouth Ave.

"The ball caused two exposed wires to cross, burning one line which fell to the ground and left the area without electricity for almost an hour."

"For SOUND PENSION AID vote YES on 2"

PROPOSITION 2 will maintain the $10 cost-of-living increase the voters granted the needy aged and blind last year. By repealing the "fine-print" provisions of the notorious McLain Scheme, it will reduce the staggering cost of pension administration!

WHO PAYS FOR THE SUPER-COSTLY McLAIN SCHEME? YOU PAY!

Already, the sales tax—the tax that bears heaviest on the working man—has increased 20 per cent! Yet there still isn't enough money in the State Treasury to pay for school needs and other State services!

To continue to finance the McLain Scheme, new sources of tax revenue would have to be tapped. One likely source is a new property tax on every homeowner in the State!

There is no need for this back-breaking tax waste! California can afford an adequate program for schools and other services and a generous pension program, too—if soundly administered!

Homeview Party Attracts Thousand in Belmont Area

Nearly a thousand Belmont, San Carlos and San Mateo residents gathered down at the Homeview Recreation Assn.'s playground this week to help celebrate Halloween.

Leading the parade were Bill McAllister, Ward Prickett and Don Tateosian, members of the Belmont dance orchestra, "Four Jacks and a Jill." This group was joined in the parade which was made up of children from 2 into their teens in a variety of costumes.

Each child paraded across the decorated platform for the judges to see and was given an apple and a balloon as he came off the stage. Serving as judges were the Rev. John Daley, Howard Kraus and Mrs. Gerald Rosson.

After the judges made their decision James Ice awarded prizes to the following: Laurie Humeny as a Scotchman, Freddie Dorman as Portola, Kathie Waldo as Carmen Miranda, Tanne Fitzpatrick as a pumpkin, Caroline Kalben as a witch, Charles Atkins as a girl, Neline Howe as an old lady, Ann Hawes as a bear, Harold Camelia as a girl, and Robert Coburn as a colonial gentleman.

General chairman was Mrs. Stewart Kirtan, and she was assisted by Misses and Messrs. Richard Spencer, Gerald Noel, Robert Clarke, Walter Straley, William Harvey, Charles Batchelder, Bob Whitney, Howard Branschaud, Don Krueger, Bob Winingham, and Messrs. Virgil Smith, Denver Wilson, Charles Haynor, Charles Iannico, Richard Leal, Dan Shamberger, Wesley Sparling, Vince O'Donnell and Stewart Kirtan.

Floodlights were donated by the Bobbie Don Shoppe and Mac McAllister donated a box of apples.

President of the association, James Ice, announced the affair a success and said it will probably be an annual event.

BUSINESS MIRROR: Question of Using Gold in Place of Paper Money Tossed Around

BY SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Gold—should the government let you have it in exchange for your paper dollars?

People who are supposed to know all about such things are choosing up sides on that question. Some of the nation's top bankers say, yes, the United States must go back to the good old days before 1933 when you could get gold coin for your paper money. Others say that such a return at this time would be "wiltless."

The dispute broke out this week in San Francisco at the American Bankers Assn. meeting. It came to the fore at the same time in New York at the National Foreign Trade Convention. Washington officials have been dragged into the word battle, but mostly to deny reports they were thinking about changing the value of gold, now set at $35 an ounce.

Pressure to get Washington to pay from $45 to $55 an ounce has been strong of late. Obvious backers of the proposal are those who mine gold and have it for sale. But others urging it contend that by raising the paper dollar of the huge hoard of gold buried at Fort Knox, Ky., the government would make a big paper profit it could apply to the soaring public debt.

Opponents of the proposal point out that at the same time the government, by raising the price of gold, would also be lowering the value of every savings account and life insurance policy in the country. This is because the dollar would be devalued in terms of its present purchasing power.

Since only Congress has the legal right to raise the price of gold, the question is just talk at this time.

But the debate over raising the value of gold and the possession of it by private citizens is getting hotter.

The National Foreign Trade Convention, attended by 1800 leading businessmen and bankers, voted unanimously in favor of "the restoration in the near future of the free convertibility of the dollar into gold on the basis of its present gold value." That means, the foreign traders want you to be able to take a $5 paper bill into the bank and get a $5 gold piece to put in the Christmas stocking, the way your grandfather used to do for you.

The American Bankers Assn. heard both sides and finally resolved that the price of gold should remain at $35 an ounce, but took no stand on "free convertibility."

One of the arguments for the return to free convertibility, is that it would put a check on government spending. It's easy to print paper money to meet the expenses of running a government, but if the government had to fork up actual gold for that paper money whenever you asked for it, the argument runs, Washington couldn't go on spending more and more every year—it wouldn't have it to spend.

W. Randolph Burgess, a top executive in the National City Bank of New York, told the bankers association the country should return to the policy of making paper money redeemable in gold. But he put the time of return farther off than the foreign traders, who said "the time to begin is now."

Allan Sproul, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, called advocacy of a free gold market and unlimited convertibility of currency into gold "wiltless."

"To expose our gold reserves to the drains of speculative and hoarding demands at home and abroad strikes me as both unwise and imprudent," Sproul told the bankers.

He noted that the U. S. dollar is perfectly sound as it is—and is sought the world over, just as it is. The Federal Reserve System, he adds, keeps it sound and the gold that backs the dollar should be kept right where it is, in Fort Knox.

CIO Unions Show Growth Throughout SM County

(This is the first of two articles on CIO unions of San Mateo County, written in connection with the history-making CIO national convention in Cleveland.)

BY BOB HARDGROVE

San Mateo County, only partially industrialized, has not offered as great a field to the industrial unions of the CIO as it has to the craft unions of the AFL.

Most workers on the Peninsula are either craftsmen or tradesmen and have made the AFL dominant in this area.

Nevertheless, the CIO locals have been growing and occupy a significant place in the county's life.

The major union is, of course, the steel workers. For most of the life of the San Mateo County CIO Council, the steelworkers' 1000-plus membership has been more than all others combined.

But the following unions have membership ranging from a handful to several hundred: United Auto Workers; Telephone Workers; Teachers Union; United Packinghouse Workers; International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union; American Newspaper Guild; American Communications Assn., and Transport Workers.

Of these, the Packinghouse Workers may show the most immediate growth—if it is successful in a contest with the AFL butchers' union for jurisdiction at the Swift and Armour plants in South San Francisco.

UPW Local 263 now represents 60 employees in the engineering and refrigeration departments at Swift. But it has made a bid to represent all 500 plant workers at Swift and another 300 at Armour who are now members of the AFL.

Petitions for election have been filed with the NLRB and a decision from Washington is due in the near future.

Harold Greene of San Bruno, secretary of the local and of the CIO council, says his union now represents a majority of the workers in the two plants. This claim has been contested by the AFL.

The local was organized in July, 1944, and was certified as bargaining agent in 1945. Wages then were at $1.44 an hour and have been raised to $1.77½ with another 8½-cent boost negotiated this year.

subject to ratification now being voted upon.

Greene says the union now has one major objective: organization of the few Swift and Armour plants not now in the CIO fold.

Curiously enough, not all the local members are enthusiastic about the possible expansion of their local to nearly 1000 members.

"Some of us like the small set up we have," one member said, "with only the skilled workers to worry about."

The contract includes one week vacation for up to five years employment, ranging to three weeks after 15 years and eight paid holidays yearly.

A health and pension plan already is in effect. The health plan provides half-pay during illness for two weeks each year.

The non-contributory pension plan provides payments of up to $100 monthly for retired employees.

Officers of the local are Harry Stapp, San Bruno, president; George Kramer, South San Francisco, vice president; Greene, financial secretary; and Pat Meegan, recording secretary.

The local has not been "too active" politically, members say. However, it has taken a "right wing" position in the CIO, generally following the lead of the steelworkers and cooperating with them.

A. J. Shippey, an international representative of the union, is in San Mateo County at present to assist the local in its organizing drive.

The Telephone Workers Union which has about 500 members on the Peninsula, also has an ambitious goal and organizing plans.

The goal is a six-hour day throughout the Bell System partly to spread the work among employees threatened with displacement by increased mechanization.

Only telephone company employees in San Mateo County in the CIO are the operators. The union expects also to organize in the commercial, plant and accounting departments in the future.

Members here belong to the Northern California-Nevada local, which has 11,000 members. It is an affiliate of Division 35, of the International Union of Communications Workers of America.

It once was an independent union, but was led into the CIO three years ago by Mrs. Marie DeMartini of San Francisco, long-time leader of the union.

A separate local will be set up for San Mateo County.

Operators make $10.40 a day at present for tricks of six, seven and eight hours. They have two and three week vacations, job security and arbitration of dismissals.

The union is "right wing" in CIO parlance and has gone along with policies laid down by President Philip Murray.

The primary "left wing" union with membership in the county is Warehouse Local 6, an affiliate of the ILWU, headed by Harry Bridges.

Local 6 has a membership of more than 400 in the county and holds contracts with the Paraffine Co., S & W Fine Foods, F. H. Frank Tannery, Johns-Manville and the now inoperative Port of Redwood City.

It recently was successful in fighting off an attempted "raid" on the Paraffine Co. unit by an AFL Warehouse Union organized by the Teamsters Union.

The basic warehouse scale is $1.47½ an hour, but members employed in manufacturing plants are in classifications reaching well above the basic figure.

There is no separate local for this county, but members here have two elected officers, both employed at the tannery. They are E. W. Conwell, chairman, and Gill Byrne, secretary.

In its 12-year existence in the county, the local has had but one strike and that many years ago at Johns-Manville.

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Mark J. Donnelly of Houston, Tex., convicted of murdering Walter Hempel, wealthy Pasadena and Lake Tahoe real estate man, will be sentenced to life imprisonment.

An all-male jury deliberated four hours last night before convicting the ex-convict of first degree murder. The jury prescribed life imprisonment.

Donnelly will be sentenced Nov. 7.

Hempel, 73, was found shot to death in his parked car near Lake Tahoe. The prosecution contended he died in a robbery June 17.

The defendant steadfastly maintained his innocence. He charged the victim was killed by the chief prosecution witness, Bill Taylor, a hotel clerk.

McCarl Tells Need For Port Bond Vote

Need for a bond issue to expand the Port of Redwood City was outlined for members of the Redwood City Rotary Club Tuesday.

Port Mgr. Merritt McCarl, speaking to Rotarians at Ramon Oaks, pointed out that this area has most of the facilities for providing a good port, but money must be forthcoming to handle the possible canned goods, cement, and other types of products which could be shipped through the port.

In tracing the history of the Port of Redwood City, McCarl explained that there is plenty of space, good road, rail, and highway facilities, and work is progressing toward providing a wide enough and deep enough channel.

Redwood City Toastmasters Club members spoke on gambling at their weekly meeting this week. Bill Phoenix was toastmaster for the evening.
